

Nick McMahon

Civil Mediation Council Registered Mediator

Specialist areas: include catastrophic injury claims and professional negligence disputes to overseeing group settlements and span diverse industries, including construction, healthcare, manufacturing, and professional services, making him adept at addressing sector-specific challenges.

Nick McMahon is an accomplished Civil and Commercial Mediator based in the UK, with a distinguished career in litigation and dispute resolution. A qualified Solicitor, Nick brings decades of expertise, specialising in insurance, product liability, personal injury, medical malpractice, and professional indemnity cases. His expertise spans:

- Insurance and product liability
- Personal injury
- Professional negligence and medical malpractice
- Wills, probate, and emotionally charged conflicts

Renowned for his calm, reassuring, and approachable manner, Nick is committed to helping individuals and organisations resolve disputes constructively and efficiently.

Approach

His mediation philosophy combines pragmatic problem-solving with an empathetic approach, fostering an environment of trust that encourages meaningful communication.

From handling catastrophic injury claims and professional negligence disputes to overseeing group settlements, Nick has extensive experience managing cases of varying complexity. His analytical legal insight, paired with his skill in gaining trust, narrowing issues and finding practical solutions, ensures parties avoid escalating conflict and instead work towards lasting resolutions.

Nick's work spans diverse industries, including construction, healthcare, manufacturing, and professional services, making him adept at addressing sector-specific challenges. His in-depth understanding of case dynamics is strengthened by his litigation background, giving him a unique perspective as a mediator. Understanding the root of conflicts is the first step to resolution and Nick applies this to all disputes.

When he's not mediating or practising law, Nick enjoys spending quality time with his family, playing guitar, and exploring the world through long walks and travel adventures. He is passionate about creating harmony, whether it's within a dispute or in day-to-day life.

Nick's calm and pragmatic approach ensures constructive communication and practical solutions. He is based in London and offers in-person and online mediation services across the South East and beyond.

Clients say: 'highly professional', 'excellent mediation facility and seamless service'